

Exit of shah likely before U.N. debate

NEW YORK (AP) — Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's doctors say he is well enough to leave the United States...

A spokesman for the shah in Mexico and doctors at New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center on Wednesday said the former Iranian ruler would soon end his stay in this country — perhaps by Saturday.

Shortly after his arrival here Oct. 22, the shah had gallbladder surgery at New York Hospital. He later underwent radiation treatments for a malignant tumor on his neck.

A non-surgical procedure late Monday night removed the last remaining stone from a bile duct. Hospital officials said Wednesday the procedure was a success and he is free to travel.

We told him he can leave any time he wants, said one of his doctors who asked not to be identified.

Hospital officials said they believe the shah wants to be out of New York by Saturday, when the Security Council is to begin debate on the hostage situation in Iran.

Iranian militants took 52 persons hostage at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran after the shah arrived here for medical treatment. Some 40 Americans are still captive.

At Cuernavaca, Mexico, where the shah found asylum in a mansion after leaving Iran, public health officer Mark Morse said, "We believe he will be here in eight to 10 days."

THE DEPOSED SHAH ... leaving U.S. soon?

Iranians escalate anti-U.S. frenzy

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Hundreds of thousands of demonstrators marched in Tehran today in response to Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's call for massive anti-American protests under the guise of religious observances...

Khomeini's Revolutionary Council fired Abolhasan Bani Sadr as Iran's foreign policy spokesman Wednesday and replaced him with Sadegh Ghotbzadeh, a hard-line member of the council...

The huge crowds in Tehran converged initially around the capital's Revolution Square, some four miles from the U.S. Embassy where pro-Khomeini militants have been holding the hostages since Nov. 4 in a bid to get the U.S. government to extradite the shah.

They then marched to the lowering Skyway monument near the airport, in the opposite direction from the embassy, about 10 miles away. Some in the throng wore white shrouds emblazoned in red letters with the words "I am dead. We Will Cut Off Your Hands" and "We Are Ready To Die For Islam."

Marshall wearing lapel buttons controlled the movements of the hundreds of separate marching groups — men at the front of the various processions followed by women and children, the traditional black veils. Some women carried babies.

Militants with bullhorns set the tone for the marches. As the crowds chanted praise of Allah and Khomeini, the city thundered with "Allah Akbar, Khomeini Bagher!" "God is Great, Khomeini is the Leader" and "Islam Up, Carter Down."

Mixed with the green flags of Islam and religious banners, were banners declaring "U.S. Imperialism, Surrender the Shah," "The United Nations — Tool of the U.S.A.," "Death to Carter and His Guests" and "Iran Up, Not. Recognize the Security Council Vote."

Khomeini has yet to announce whether Ghotbzadeh will go in New York to attend the emergency session of the U.N. Security Council on the U.S.-Iranian crisis. The session was set for Saturday, and Bani Sadr, who wanted to mediate an end to the crisis, had been scheduled to address the U.N. meeting.

Anti-Iranian sentiments displayed in this storefront window

Sign language expresses his hostility toward Iran

By MICHAEL MORRIS Staff Writer

"If You Are IRANIAN Stay Out." For Barry Smith, one of the millions of Americans frustrated by the current crisis in Iran, that sign says it all.

Smith, the owner of two "Milk & Things" stores in Yonkers and Pelham, has prominently displayed the sign in both of his storefront windows, and he admits he doesn't care if it is discriminatory and probably illegal.

He posted the signs, he said, as a reaction to the Iranians' seizure of some 40 American hostages at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran Nov. 4. And he believes the signs not only express his own feelings, but also the sentiments of many of his customers.

Smith estimated when asked what kind of reaction he has been getting from his customers. He defended his views Wednesday while at his Lueden Avenue store in Pelham.

"I had one person in here and she said, 'That's the way it started with the Japanese in the concentration camps.' But everyone else feels pretty much the way I do."

Smith was referring to the treatment of Japanese, many of them American citizens, and their forced internment in this country after the outbreak of World War II. He said the present situation differs, however, because it is Iranian nationals who are unwelcome in his stores and not naturalized citizens.

'Son of Sam' probe

Friend links Carr to occult

By MALBY TERRY and JIM MITTEGGER with JACK GRAHEM, Minot Daily News Copyright Gannett Westchester Newspapers

The late John Carr, a central figure in the re-opened probe of the "Son of Sam" murders, belonged to a "violent underground," Yonkers cult that worshipped the devil and took part in Satanic rituals in North Dakota, a former close friend of Carr's has said.

The friend, Philip Falcon, who knew Carr when Carr was stationed in North Dakota during a stint in the Air Force, told of Carr's involvement with Satanism in both Yonkers and North Dakota during a recent, two-hour interview with these newspapers.

Carr was the son of Sam Carr of Yonkers, the neighbor that confessed "Son of Sam" killer David Berkowitz says ordered him to kill.

The Queens District Attorney's office recently re-opened the "Son of Sam" investigation after Gannett Westchester Newspapers published a series of articles demonstrating the probability Berkowitz did not act alone in the year-long rampage that left six dead and seven wounded in 1976-1977.

Carr is among those investigators believe may have aided Berkowitz in the murder spree.

Falcon's statements linking Carr to what he said was a "very violent" Yonkers cult could provide new support to investigators. Theories that the "Son of Sam" killings may have been occult motivated.

Specifically, investigators are probing the existence of a Satanic cult that operated near Berkowitz' home in northwest Yonkers during the time of the killings.

Sources have told Gannett Westchester Newspapers that members of the devil worshipping cult to which Berkowitz is believed to have belonged may have aided him in committing the murders.

John Carr was found shot to death in Minot, N.D., in February 1978, six months after Berkowitz' arrest in Yonkers. His death, first listed as an apparent suicide, is now being probed as a possible homicide.

As part of the new investigation, authorities have interviewed friends of Carr in Minot. Falcon, thought to be a key in the case because of his friendship with Carr, was sought but never found by Minot police. These newspapers found Falcon on the West Coast, where he granted an interview.

At that session, Falcon said Carr was "very much" involved in Satanic cult activities in Minot and Yonkers.

Carr's interest in the occult apparently led him to a close relationship with Falcon, who said that Carr "read my entire library" of occult books from "how to make amulets" to "third eye" books.

Falcon noted in describing his association with Carr in Minot. He described Carr as someone who participated in the activities in Westchester and that the ritualistic sacrifices "went all the way."

Tight money shuts door on homebuyers

By STEVEN CLARK Staff Writer

In an age of extremely tight money and double digit inflation, Paul and Anita Drwaga recently pulled off a small coup — they purchased their own home.

Amazed with what banks call the right numbers — a combined annual salary of $40,000 and the ability to put down a minimum of $25,000 — the Drwagas, who have been married eight years, bought an $82,000 home in the Spran Knolls section of Yonkers. They admitted to "locking out" on their choice, an 18-year-old split level with four bedrooms and two baths.

"We found looking very exasperating," said Drwaga, 33, who with his wife looks out of about 30 houses throughout Westchester County before making a decision. "We saw so much garbage you wouldn't believe it. And some of the prices people asked for were unbelievable."

The closing for Drwaga, a health and beauty sales salesman and his wife, a fourth grade teacher at School 22, is still several weeks away. They still must await final approval from Citibank and sweat over the interest rate on their 30-year, $37,000 mortgage which could climb from 11 1/2 percent to 14 percent.

Skyrocketing prices and a shortage by most banks on available mortgage money has made it extremely difficult for young couples to buy a first home in Yonkers. Additionally, local realtors say, there are relatively few homes on the market.

"We're finding two or three buyers for every house in the 'good' category," said James O'Keefe of O'Keefe & Eisenberg Inc. "Backup offers are now a regular thing."

According to O'Keefe, the housing turnover rate in Yonkers is not what it once was either. People are not as eager to sell their houses as they once were, he said.

with their mortgages all but paid off and the low taxes, they're now in the cheapest place they can live and everyday they stay in their houses 17 1/2 percent of the year.

Home prices in Yonkers, as throughout the metropolitan area, have tripled and quadrupled. Homes in Crestwood, the oldest neighborhood in the city, are sold at $30,000 are now on the market for more than $90,000. The house the Drwagas are interested in sold for less than $25,000 two decades ago.

Only now, buyers and sellers are forced to deal with another factor — the shortage of bank money. Nearly all savings banks in Yonkers have stopped giving mortgage money, with only national commercial banks like Chase Manhattan, Citibank and the National Bank of North America able to give loans.

"The price are not going down yet, but they will if the rates continue to go up," said James Vitell, president of Arista Real Estate. "If things continue as they are, in 1980 the average wage earner, the cop, fireman and sanitation worker, will not be able to buy a house.

Commercial banks are now giving mortgages at between 11 1/2 and 13 percent, a dramatic rise from the 8 1/2 percent rate offered in 1978. These banks want a minimum salary of about $40,000 and the ability to put down at least 30 percent of the total cost of the house. In addition, Citibank requires the buyer to take out mortgage insurance and Chase requires him to have at least a three-month-old account with the bank.

"It's not like it used to be where I could call up Yonkers Savings Bank and say 'Mike, give him the money,' he's good for it," said O'Keefe.

According to realtors, those selling homes are also beginning to sweat now. While in almost all cases the seller is still guaranteed to make a tidy profit on his house, they say he now has to be a bit more realistic in order to sell the house.

Town loses fight against cult

By R. A. LEONARD Staff Writer

Two Bedford homeowners' groups have lost a court bid to stop a right-wing religious and political organization from opening a national center and boy's school on a large estate in the town.

State Supreme Court Justice John Marchak Wednesday dismissed a suit brought against the Bedford Zoning Board of Appeals by the McLean Street Area Association and the Bedford Lake Park Association.

The lawsuit had charged the zoning board acted arbitrarily in its May 2 decision to grant special use permits to the Foundation for a Christian Civilization and Charles Laczko, headmaster of the proposed school for 20 boys.

But, Marchak said that the board "could not have denied permits to the [foundation] merely because its views might be considered unorthodox or unpopular."

Thomas Singleton, a Mount Kisco attorney representing the homeowners' groups, said Wednesday that he would advise his clients to appeal the case to the Appellate Division.

He lost by a vote in Bedford and by a vote here, he said. "I'd like to take this case before the Appellate Division, which has five justices."

The foundation now rents the 29-acre Tucker estate on McLean Street from Virginia Tatum, of Tatum, a supporter of the foundation who purchased the property last year.

wanted to have power over other people.
"He wanted to be able to manipulate against other people he thought were interfering with his life. He was fatalistic," Falson said.
"Carr," Falson explained, was also fatalistic. "I know Falson said Carr kept a list of the demons of hell on a piece of notebook paper and remarked that it 'sounds like another Miss M.'"
Carr practiced his Satanic rituals in Mont with others, including a North Carolina native named Donny Boone. Boone came to North Carolina to work for a company close to him, after trying to burn down buildings on a rural farm which he owned in the early 1970s, the source said.
Falson said Carr and Boone used his collection of occult books for the Satanic rituals, which on at least one occasion called for animal sacrifice and the ritual use of a "magic circle."
"I came to my house, and he was there," Falson said, describing the night he found the man engaged in a bloody ritual at his home.
"When I walked in the door, they were in the kitchen, and Donny had this animal, whatever it was. He had cut its throat and it was bleeding all over the kitchen. He was going to take it into the other room. There was a circle drawn and they were sacrificing it. Old Donny Boone was drinking the animal's blood," Falson said.
Last month, these newspapers revealed that a Satanic cult performed its rituals near the Carr and Berkowitz homes in Yonkers and near the old Dr. Apud's Apartment.
Behind the Berkowitz and Carr residence a number of other Satanic cult members were found slain in what authorities believe may have been ritualistic sacrifices.
Recently, police broke up another occult ritual in the nearby Stillwell Estate.

Bani Sadr had been trying to arrange a compromise between the U.S. and Iranian positions on the 40 Americans held hostage at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran since Nov. 4 by Muslim militants demanding the U.S. government extradite Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi to Iran to stand trial as a war criminal.
But Bani Sadr's attempts at seeking some sort of middle way out of the impasse only stiffened the resolve of the embassy occupants and Shomoni.
On Wednesday, the militants condemned the U.N. Security Council's efforts to mediate the crisis and Bani Sadr's plan to represent Iran at the scheduled council debate.
Echoing Khomeini's own rejection of U.N. mediation, they condemned the world forum as the "Satanic Council" and "Carter's emissary" and said again they will settle for nothing less than return of the hostages in exchange for the hostages.
"We're training them, giving them government grants, they're over here taking my money - and meanwhile our people are being tortured," said South. "I'm a small businessman and I feel that I'm being taken for a ride by them."
"As far as I'm concerned, what they're doing in Iran is an act of war."
In the wake of the crisis, U.S. Attorney General Benjamin R. Civiletti has warned residents against illegal discrimination based on a person's national origin.
Federal laws, Civiletti said, prohibit non-citizens as well as citizens of the United States and the United States and the Justice Department would prosecute incidents of discrimination "despite our justifiable anger" at the embassy takeover.
At Sadr's Yonkers store on Midland Avenue, manager Jeff Baron said he agreed with the sign's message and considered hanging it in the window. The sign has drawn many comments from customers, he said, but few complaints.
