Re: Confidential Investigation

Dear John and Phil,

We convened for nearly three hours on the evening of March 28, 1996 to discuss a certain high-security matter. At that meeting, your feelings about this subject and its potential great significance were clearly stated.

On April 12, another meeting was held in the office of the deputy mayor---and this one also included Commissioner Donald Christopher. In the aftermath of that session, Detective Kevin Murphy was assigned to an investigation of this situation, and to date Kevin has, in my estimation, performed in a highly commendable manner.

In brief, he has uncovered additional significant evidence: evidence which further fleshes out the original information provided by three separate sources, which we had discussed during our meeting of March 28. Detective Murphy has also confirmed related information connected to child porn and child molestation activities which are almost certainly still occurring in the present. However, the extent of any current activities in Yonkers itself is still to be determined.

In addition, new statements from a primary source of mine have raised the name of a former Yonkers political figure from the 70s in the context of having dealt drugs with certain key members of a certain key group. Further, there is other new evidence regarding a pair of former Yonkers' employees, but I would prefer to reserve that for another forum.

All of this is fine, and it also leads to the inescapable conclusion that this investigation should continue unfettered, since to date it has made some noteworthy advances and has the wherewithal to continue to do so.

Now, the problem. I was told today that the Yonkers Police Department has no money available to bring Mr. Rothstein to this city to assist and perhaps even put this investigation over the top if things turn out correctly.

We all know what is potentially at stake here, and we also know the possibly enormous ramifications that are involved. I am very aware of Yonkers' financial situation. However, the amount in question here is minimal, especially when the scope of what is on the line is considered.

How much? Mr. Rothstein has presented me with a budget, which he himself pared to the bone because of the significance of this matter. All inclusive: travel to and from Minnesota, hotel, meals, phone and fee add up to $2325.00. Now, that's two thousand, three hundred and twenty-five dollars. Not $23,000.

Can you help make this happen?

Regards,

Maury
